"It is not wide reading but useful reading that tends to excellence."
--Aristippus.

SELECTED BOOKS

Gaum, C. G., and others. REPORT WRITING. Prentice-Hall, 1942. 238 G23 Ed.2

"This book, which applies certain principles of composition and rhetoric to the special field of the report, is intended to be helpful to those writers who are either inexperienced or less effective than they would like to be."

Renner, G. T. CONSERVATION OF NATIONAL RESOURCES. John Wiley & Sons, Inc., 1942. 279 R29C

"This textbook, in contrast with others in the field, gives little attention to the technical aspects of conservation. It tells the story of the growth of the conservation movement, classifies natural resources from the point of view of conservation, lists and evaluates the educational material available and examines the philosophical and curricular problems involved."

Rice, J. E., and Botsford, H. E. PRACTICAL POULTRY MANAGEMENT. John Wiley & Sons, Inc., 1930. 47 R362 Ed.2

"This book is prepared as a guide to poultrymen, whether they keep poultry on a commercial scale or in small flocks. The suggestions have been carefully tested through research and experience. The chapters are organized about the major activities in conducting the poultry enterprise."

Smith, W. W. ELEMENTS OF LIVESTOCK JUDGING. Lippincott, 1941. 40 Sm6

"The subject of livestock judging constitutes one of the important divisions of animal husbandry and is related in a most vital way to the other major divisions, feeding and breeding."

Washburn, R. M. PRODUCTIVE DAIRYING. Lippincott, 1922. 44 W274 Ed.2

"From an experience of more than thirty years in dairy work, covering much of the United States, the author has written what he feels and knows, from innumerable questions asked, to be what the thoughtful reader desires to know."
